

Advice

- If it won't run away, use a tripod.
- The background makes or breaks a great image.
- Always follow the light.
- You are responsible for every square millimeter of the frame.
- If the light in front of you looks great or is doing something interesting turn around and see what it is doing behind you.
- Set the alarm clock for 3:00AM.
- Read the Manual.
- Always think what are you trying to say in a photograph before pressing the shutter.
- Photography is all about capturing light.
- An artist decides what to include in a painting while the photographer decides what to exclude from an image.
- The only difference between a good photographer and a bad one is the good one never shows his bad work.
- Get there before the sun comes up, and don't leave just because the sun has set.
- F1.4.
- A P&S in your hand is much better than the Hassie/Leica you left at home.
- Get closer.
- Unless you are into wildlife, telephotos are highly overrated.
- Most lenses are better 2-3 stops slower than at the widest aperture.
- Don't be afraid to bend the rules.
- Edit ruthlessly and don't make excuses for a marginal photo.
- Open your eyes. Don't just see; LOOK!
- Surprise me!
- Never show anyone the bad ones...
